This newsletter is dedicated in loving memory to

George "Greg" Seelig

Missions Of Love President, fellow laborer and friend Called home on August 13, 2016

Greg Seelig's vocation in life was that of an attorney, and just as he strove to bring justice within the walls of a courtroom, likewise Greg worked diligently for impartiality for the sake Kingdom of God.

While upon this earth, Greg enjoyed distributing Bibles via the Gideon Ministry, helping to place at least 1 million Bibles through local and U.S. Scripture Blützes at schools, colleges, nursing homes, hospitals and hotels.

In like manner, Greg gave of himself to the work of Missions Of Love for 14 years helping to further the gospel through building relationships with our Haitian brothers and sisters as he conversed in French, help to build and maintain structures on the MOL Campus, lend a helping hand wherever needed, and became an integral partner of Missions Of Love to maintain legal integrity.

We hope you enjoy the tributes to our beloved and greatly missed President intentionally interwoven throughout this Newsletter, for that was how Greg lived his life for God, quietly, uniquely, and purposely intertwined with the "things" closest to his heart.

Hurricane Matthew Relief

Along with the ravishes of Hurricane Matthew came the torrential rains, flashfloods and mudslides of the "Rainy Season," and all too quickly the spread of malaria and cholera in Haiti.

However, MOL being a constant feet-on-the-ground mission, did what it does on a daily basis and quickly put Hurricane Relief Funds to work providing quality healthcare, safe water and food to those in need. As a result, dozens of mountain people have been coming to the Jolivert Clinic daily to receive free medical care, Gayden D'lo (safe water treatment) and a portion of beans, rice, corn and oil. The results

A REMEMBRANCE OF GREG SEELIG

by Dr Bob Johnson

On the 13th day of August, 2016 our Lord called a faithful servant home. His name was Greg Seelig. He was an attorney-at-law and still working at that profession when he was diagnosed with a rapidly progressive malignant tumor from which he mercifully was spared a prolongation of suffering only a few months later. But more importantly, he was a kind, compassionate, yet valiant man of God. He was also, for most of his adult years a devoted husband, father and churchman. It was, in fact, at his church--Beaver Dam Baptist Church--that I first met Greg many years ago when I appeared there one Sunday evening to encourage volunteers to go into Haiti with me on a short-term mission trip with a goal of building a residence for visiting missionaries at our then new clinic site at Jolivert. I was then president of MISSIONS OF LOVE, the office Greg held as his untimely death took him from us.

Greg was not a carpenter, but he joined our building team on that, his first trip in. But he was eager to go with us on that trip so long ago, feeling that God could put him to some use, even though his lawyerly talents were certainly not required in Haiti. Like many professional people I know, Greg enjoyed the opportunity of working with his hands in some endeavor entirely removed from that of his day-to-day occupation. He took to carpentry and a variety of other construction-related tasks that blossomed over the years as he was to return time and time again until he had become a truly skilled builder, helping to build most of the twelve buildings we now have on the compound at Jolivert. But reminiscent of another carpenter in Judea a couple of thousand years ago, Greg was "more than a carpenter." He had a Christ-like heart for the poorest of the Haitians he had come to serve and with whom he so gently and patiently shared the good news of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. He was especially blessed to have a working knowledge of French, and so could converse with them to a great extent....especially with the children. This is how I will always remember Greg: sitting beneath a shady tree or down by the river bank while on a break, surrounded by a cluster of laughing and energized children, sharing some bible story or simply trying to answer one of a thousand queries they had for him.

Enjoy your heavenly passage, dear friend; dear "good and faithful servant." Save a place for us....and know that you were much loved and will be sorely missed.

Making History ...

The skillful hands of Dr. Mick Vanden Bosch while performing the first-ever eye surgery (cataract removal) at the MOL Eye Clinic in Jolivert, Haiti on Oct. 15, 2016.

"I was blind but now I see!"

~ John 9:25

In the midst of the tragedy and loss of Hurricane Matthew Dr. Mick Vanden Bosch made possible the accomplishment of a long-dreamed of goal of the eye ministry by bringing the blessing of sight to seven Haitians and the possibility of continued sight to another.

Despite the withdrawal of our sole American dentist and the absence of modern conveniences, God provided extraordinary Haitian dentists, and Dr. Mick worked like a skilled missionary surgeon in very basic conditions.

Working for a Jewish carpenter named Jesus is true job security.

Jehovah-jireh (God My Provider) showed up in Jolivert along with the October Dental Mission Team, providing another piece of history... a Haitian-run Dental Clinic.

Dr. Scott Rousseau of Gros-Morne and Dr. Eugene Hans of Port-de-Paix were able to work the entire six-day clinic while Dr. Vassor Marc-Ely also of Port-de-Paix provided an extra set of hands half a day on Dessaline's Death, a Haitian Independence Day.

Altogether the Haitian dentists saw 121 Patients and provided 306 Patient Services.

Speak To Us

Speak to us young scholar
Of all you have learned and known
Of how you have taken the eternal journey
Unto the Father's throne

Yea, speak to us young scholar
In all your tongues of varied tone
Whisper to us of guidance from the Spirit
Upon whose gentle breeze you have flown

Oh speak to us young scholar
Your wisdom and encouragement our memories
are adorn
Oh so quickly from our ranks
Your leadership was torn

Yea speak to us young scholar
With pleasant smile and easy gesture
That beckons us continually onward
Unto stiller water and greener pasture

Oh speak to us young scholar
Unto friend or stranger, some cheerful some forlorn
Our joys and sorrows
In The Lord's might you have helped bourn

Speak to us young scholar
Of all you have learned and known
Help shepherd us along
Our eternal journey unto the Father's throne

Faith In Motion...

Toyota
Bus
$42,000

Due to years of wear and tear, our old Land Cruiser is beyond repair. Therefore, Missions Of Love is moving out in faith to raise the needed funds to purchase a new vehicle. The journey between Jolivert and Port-AU-Prince is 198.5 miles, and that does not include local commutes.

Will you consider helping us to provide dependable and safe transportation for our U.S. Mission Teams and Haitian staff so we may continue the work in the rural, mountainous region of Haiti where we have been called?

Greg will be greatly missed

I had only been in Haiti with Greg three times, but know he was a hard worker and seemed to enjoy being on the Mission compound.

On one trip, the airlines hadn't put all my boarding passes in my ticket. I had to rush to the ticket booth, which was under construction, sending me outside and into another building. It was a long way. I told the group to go ahead and I would catch up one way or another. I made it to the ticket line, waited my turn, and got my boarding pass, knowing I would never make it back in time. I turned around and there was Greg with a cart waiting to take me back to boarding. He said, "I didn't want to leave you by yourself."

Another time, I had brought letters from the kids of Reflections Of Christ VBS for a Haitian family whom our church had built a house. I had the letters in hand, but my interpreter had disappeared, leaving only Greg and I when the kids came to visit. Greg so graciously took the letters and with his ability to speak French, was able to relay the messages to the children. The kids befriended Greg and followed him around. He got them busy helping with the concrete walkway from the Conference Hall to the Mission House, and they were glad to be doing it!

have been families regaining strength, stability, and a healthy restart.

Here's how your dollars have been used...

Jolivert Medical Clinic Healthcare Treatment (consultation, lab tests, and needed meds)
Average Cost: $7 per patient

Food Portion (beans, rice, corn, and oil) $5 per family
Gadyen Dlo (safe water treatment) Cost: 35 cents per family

A little about our Safe Water Program

Although cholera, a water-borne illness, has been spreading throughout Haiti in record-breaking numbers following Hurricane Matthew, the nucleus of Jolivert and other areas serviced by the Gadyen Dlo project (an in-house project of MOL Jolivert) have had NO cases of cholera to report!

Here's a little more to smile about...

One bottle of Gadyen Dlo will purify 185 gallons of water. One bottle of Gadyen Dlo cost only 35 cents (U.S.) Therefore, $1,000 can supply safe water for 2,857 families.

Hurricane Matthew Relief: Beans, rice, corn and oil ready for distribution.
